

As a long time resident of neighboring property, I would like to restate my concerns about how a Cannabis cultivation grow is likely to exacerbate an already multi-year problem with too little water (via the creek) to our multi-cabin property. For many years we have had to truck in water to serve our cabins needs during late spring and summer months - a major expense and hassle. Our belief is that a Cannabis cultivation operation nearby will make that situation far worse because of their need for likely significant water for irrigation purposes of a large grow.

Please take this in consideration as you examine their appeal to your previous denial - which relieved us greatly.
